Renaming of Haneda Airport International Passenger Terminal Building and Other Facilities in 2020

~International Passenger Terminal Building will be renamed Passenger Terminal 3 Building. Railway stations will also be renamed.~

Ahead of the launch of the international flight facilities at Haneda Airport's Terminal 2 scheduled for March 2020, the names of the international passenger terminal and other facilities will be changed

New international flight facilities are being constructed at Haneda Airport's Passenger Terminal 2 Building to accommodate international flights in part of the terminal building, starting March 2020.

International flights at Haneda Airport will operate at both the current International Passenger Terminal Building and the Passenger Terminal 2 Building. To avoid confusion to users, the current "International Passenger Terminal Building" will be renamed "Passenger Terminal 3 Building" (abbreviated as Terminal 3), in March 2020. At the same time, the international flight parking lot and the railway stations of the Keikyu Line and Tokyo Monorail Line will also be renamed (see detail in Annex 1).

To avoid confusion to users, the government and private sectors have jointly established "Haneda Airport Public Relations Committee," whose members are shown in Annex 2, to conduct a public relation campaign on the renaming in due course.
